Investor news no. 57 - 2025 | Copenhagen, the 10th of September 2025

FOM Technologies has received a purchase order from one of only three U.S. National Defense Laboratories. This marks the company's fifth U.S. national laboratory customer and its first defense-focused national lab. In accordance with the agreement, FOM Technologies will not disclose the identity of the laboratory.

The order includes versatile lab-scale slot-die coating equipment, which will be integrated into advanced materials R&D operations - supporting research at the intersection of national security and emerging defense technologies. Top management will ensure immediate delivery.

Martin Kiener, CEO of FOM Technologies Inc., commented: "This marks our fifth U.S. national lab client, following collaborations with Argonne, Los Alamos, Oak Ridge, and Pacific Northwest National Laboratory (PNNL)—but it is our very first in the defense research space.

The average national lab employs between 5,000 and 15,000 staff and has annual research budgets in the billions of U.S. dollars, so they truly represent the tip of the spear in American innovation. Based on the success of past partnerships, our expectations for working with this U.S. National Defense Lab are very high."

With this new engagement, FOM Technologies further strengthens its position as a trusted technology partner across U.S. government research institutions, particularly those at the forefront of materials science and scalable defense innovation.

This investor news will not change the 2025 financial guidance.
