Investor news no 19/2025: Dataproces and Index100 enter into strategic partnership on new software platform

Dataproces Group A/S and Index100 ApS have entered into a strategic cooperation agreement on the development of a new software platform for Danish municipalities, called "KommuneProfilen". The parties jointly want to give municipalities new opportunities to work with key figures and analyses as a basis for debate and decision-making support in the municipalities. The target group is broad and includes both politicians, administration and citizens in the municipalities.

"With the platform, we want to provide easy access to comparable key figures, analyses and forecasts - all qualified by some of the country's most experienced experts in key figure analysis, demography and municipal economics. By pooling our skills, we can create a strong and user-friendly platform that sets new standards for work with analyses and key figures in the municipalities. At the same time, the platform must be so user-friendly that politicians and citizens can also benefit greatly from it", says a joint statement from Director Peter Holdt-Olesen from Index100 and CEO Michael Binderup, Dataproces.

Michael Binderup adds that the collaboration and the new product will further strengthen Dataproces' brand and expects that the platform will ultimately give the company's ARR (Annual Recurring Revenue) a further boost.

The first version of "KommuneProfilen" is expected to be launched in the autumn.
